“Teachers Summer Institute provides a great opportunity to reconnect with the ‘artist’ as part of the ‘teacher.’”
Moore’s Teachers Summer Institute 2011 is designed to enhance the culture of teaching and empower learning in and through visual art. A professionally directed program of studio-based workshops offers art educators the opportunity to recharge batteries, deepen personal direction, hone skills, expand concept development and discover new applications for educational practice.

PROGRAM OPPORTUNITIES
- Make art in an exciting studio setting
- Learn new skills and techniques
- Network with colleagues
- Explore issues in contemporary art
- Earn 3 graduate-level credits
- Earn professional continuing education hours

STUDIO & PANEL DISCUSSIONS
- Invigorate individual practice
- Strengthen the teaching experience
- Expand resources for curricular design

"Teachers Summer Institute was such a great renewal and validation for me."

2D and 3D Studios:
In studios facilitated by professional art faculty, participants focus on personal direction, experimentation, and individual point of view. Morning options include drawing, painting, and mixed media. Ceramics is offered in the afternoon.

Contemporary Art & Lunch:
Guest speakers address important topics in contemporary art and how to relate them to the interests of young people. Presentations are followed by luncheon and discussion.

Museum & Gallery Visits:
Two open afternoons give participants the opportunity to tour the nearby Philadelphia Museum of Art and visit Philadelphia’s other outstanding cultural institutions.

Optional Evenings Sessions:
The following choices are available Monday – Thursday evening: Extended Studio Time, Life Drawing Workshop and Printmaking Workshop

Graduate Credit:
Participants wishing to earn graduate-level credit will be registered for Enhancing the Culture of Art Education (EVFT1600). A project-based unit plan that incorporates TSI content will be due August 6. There is no additional cost for graduate credit.

Tuition:
$350
$525 early registration
